Let's draft Robin Heid for guv!

By Noah Brodbeck
CLP Communications Chair

Robin Heid, political gadfly and former Libertarian statehouse candidate, has formally announced his candidacy for the Republican nomination for Governor. And he's serious, quite serious.

Wait a minute, is this the Robin Heid I remember, jumping off tall buildings in a single bound, famed author of such works as Sport Death, and founder of the No More Drug War Foundation? Yes, it's still Robin, but I never pictured him as ... well, one of them. So I gave Robin a call, and another, and another, and finally got through.

No need to worry, Robin is still Libertarian as ever, fervent about stopping this frontal assault on our human rights and civil liberties. That's good, had me worried for a minute. But why Republican? The answer is obvious: No self-respecting straight Republican wishes to be the sacrificial cow for the Democrats to slay this election. Robin realized that, and took that big leap into the ring, garnering more publicity in one shot than any Libertarian I can think of, even Ron Paul when he was here on his Presidential tour.

After talking to other Libertarians, a consensus formed, one that certainly holds promise for all of us. Let's begin a campaign to draft Robin Heid as the Libertarian candidate for Governor. The benefits should be apparent to everyone: Robin has already been publicized, it should bring our argument on the War on Drugs to the forefront of the debate, and I think we could actually see a 15 to 30% voter return for our Libertarian-Republican candidate. It only takes 10% for the state to consider us a real party?

So, what about it? Remember, we've got to hurry, the convention is only a month away.

Speaking of the convention, organizer Mary Margaret reports that early sign-ups indicate that we'll have one of the best turn-outs ever for Walter Williams and all the other annual activities! Be there!

On December 10, 1989, University of California at Santa Barbara graduate student Patrick Shanahan died in Orange County, California after attending a Grateful Dead concert. He did not die from an overdose of LSD (a medical impossibility), as alleged by Englewood, California police who arrested Shanahan that evening. No, the Orange County coroner has ruled out overdose, suicide or accident as the cause of death; Patrick Shanahan was murdered, that was the coroner's ruling, attributing the death to asphyxiation caused by a larynx crushed by violence. Several witnesses reported seeing a half-dozen Englewood police officers encircling Shanahan and beating him mercilessly with nightsticks.

In the autumn of 1989, a similar incident in New Jersey following a Grateful Dead concert left another so-called "Dead Head" lifeless, this time at the hands of concert security guards.

Throughout the latter half of 1989 and January, 1990, most of the nation's major newspapers and media sources (MTV News and the Los Angeles Times being the rare exceptions) failed to report these atrocities against civil, Constitutional and human rights assumed to be inherent in American citizenship. Yet during the same time, the same newspapers and media sources were full of reports of the burgeoning freedom and human rights movement in Eastern Europe.

On Thursday, January 25, 1990, the Denver Post expressed its ignorance of the above events with an editorial which stated in part: "If this is a war (on drugs), where are the bodies?" Two innocent victims of this nation's war on drugs lie cold and gray in their graves, while newspapers - supposedly empowered by the U.S. constitution as the last resort defenders of freedom and liberty in this nation - cheer on those who are howling

Gun control is not a question of law; it is a fundamentally possessed right

Dear CLiPboard Readers:

Much of the current debate over gun control centers on the Second Amendment to our Constitution. Gun control advocates say the precept applies only to the organized militia, while those on the pro-gun (dare I say "pro-choice"?) side claim the amendment guarantees the individual the right to keep and bear arms. Former Supreme Court Chief Justice Warren Burger believes that an insight into the "purpose, setting, and the objectives of the (Constitution's) draftsmen" is needed to settle the dispute. I agree.

In 1772 Thomas Jefferson wrote that "If the group has authority to transgress on individual rights, this would be slavery, and not the liberty which the Bill of Rights has made inviolable, and for the preservation of which our government has been charged." George Mason, another author of the Constitution, stated in 1788: "I ask who are the militia? They consist of the whole people, except a few public officials." Jefferson again stated in 1817 that "Our belief ever was that ever louder for a "shoot on sight, ask questions later" bounty on users of illicit drugs in this nation.

If Patrick Shanahan had just exited, stumbling and violently drunk, from a Willie Nelson concert on Dec. 10, the worst thing that the cops would've done to him would have been to have him put in the drunk tank overnight. But because he had just left a Grateful Dead concert - reputed both for their non-violence and the frequent use of LSD - Patrick Shanahan was executed without trial by California's version of the Securitate. The drug war is hypocrisy given force of law, and because our Constitution guarantees citizens equal protection under the law, the unconstitutional drug war must be ended.

Why should Coloradoans be concerned about the death of a "druggie" in California? For one thing, there are apparently some powerbrokers in this nation who don't want you to know that there are dissidents in America who suffer human rights atrocities equal to those in El Salvador, Romania, and China, or else the story of Patrick Shanahan's death would have been more widely reported in the nation's media. Secondly, the Grateful Dead play Red Rocks every year, and it could be your son or daughter who dies next at the hands of a cop crazed by drug hate.

The CLP condemns the drug war as fascist hypocrisy and condemns all human rights atrocities everywhere in the world, especially in our own backyards.

Yours in Liberty,
Acting Chairman

Ron Bain

Congress has not unlimited powers to provide for the general welfare." Alexander Hamilton wrote "If the representatives of the people betray their constituents, there is no resource left but in the exertion of that original right of self-defense... the citizens must rush tumultuously to arms."

In 1765 Sir William Blackstone, considered the pre-eminent authority on British Common Law (upon which our system is based), noted the three avenues of recourse open to free peoples whose rights have been violated: first, the courts; second, to petition the king and parliament; and third, "the right of having and using arms for self-preservation and defense." Later, Sir Blackstone spoke of "the fifth and last auxiliary right of the subject is that of having arms for their defense."

U.S. Code 10 Section 311(a) states "The militia of the United States consists of all able-bodied males at least 17 years of age." In upholding this law the Supreme Court wrote in Presser vs. Illinois (1886): "It is undoubt-ably true that all citizens capable of bearing arms constitute the reserved military force of reserve militia of the United States. The States cannot prohibit the people from keeping and bearing arms, so as to disable the people." Over a century and a half before the massacre at Tianenmen Square, Justice Joseph Story wrote, "The right of the people to keep and bear arms has been considered as the palladium of the liberties of a republic, since it offers a strong moral check against the usurpation and arbitrary power of rulers." In U.S. vs. Miller (1939) the high court again said, "the militia comprised all males physically capable of acting in concert for the common defense."

Finally, "Experience should teach us to be most on our guard to protect liberty when the government's purposes are beneficent. The greatest dangers to liberty lurk in the insidious encroachment by men of zeal, well-meaning but without understanding."

Walter Williams Boosters from Colorado Springs plan bus trip to Fort Collins for convention

Dear CLiPboard Readers:

I note in the February 1990 LP News that Dr. Williams will be a speaker at your state party convention in May.

We have lots of Walter Williams Boosters in the Colorado Springs area and may try to organize a "Boosters Bus" to hear him speak, assuming his talk will be open to the public. Please advise me on the details.

My best wishes for an outstanding convention, and I hope your impress Dr. Williams with both the quality and the quantity of attendance.

Enclosed are some Booster materials.

missing moral and philosophical case for the principles of freedom. I am enclosing the February and March issue of our monthly publication, Freedom Daily, as well as our current status report to show you the nature of our work.

We are having our inaugural supper in Denver on the evening of April 19 at the Embassy Suites Hotel. The featured speakers will be Richard Eberling, our Academic Vice-President who is the Ludwig Von Mises Professor of Economics at Hillsdale College in Michigan, and Walter Williams (a day before the CLP convention). It will be a coat and tie affair.

We would like very much to extend an invitation to attend to all Colorado Libertarians. However, if you feel that this would detract from the CLP convention, we fully understand.

Sincerely yours,
Jacob G. (Bumper) Hornberger, President

clp progress report

The CLP moves forward another month, blazing a path for liberty in our time!

New Affiliates - The Denver County Libertarian Party was formed Feb. 6 at the home of CLP Chairman Ron Bain during the cocktail party held there. This makes the second affiliate formed in as many months. Kevin Bloom is holding an Open House in Boulder, and we might possibly see our third affiliate opening shortly.

Macintosh Fund - At the CLP board meeting in December, it was decided to create a fund for those who desired to help the CLP enter the modern age. Computerization is happening at all levels of society, and the CLP should be no exception. If you wish to contribute to the fund, send your check to the office - and please indicate that you wish the money to go to the Macintosh fund.

Petition Talk - The CLP voted at the January meeting to provide 20 petitioners for the FIJA amendment drive, however - it certainly doesn't stop there. Robin Heid, head of the No More Drug War Foundation, needs petitioners for his campaign, and petitioners for a possible H.E.M.P. (Help End Marijuana Prohibition) initiative. If you are interested, give his campaign manager, Jon Baragra a call at 722-1626. Tell 'em you heard it here first!

Full Time Editor - Well, after a rather prolonged settling-in period, CLP Communications Chair Noah Brodbeck was removed from the post on March 10, with Acting Chairman Ron Bain agreeing to guarantee the CLiPboard's publication in March and April. Bain suggested contracting out the newsletter after April. That will be a topic of discussion at the convention.

WILLIAMS'S STUNNING CLASSIC
THE STATE AGAINST BLACKS

by Walter Williams

Williams's powerful, polemical classic demolishes the myth of benevolent state intervention to show how government is waging a systematic war against black progress. A shattering blow against the established wisdom and a call for the true liberation of minorities from the oppressive regulations of the state and its apologists.

SOUTH AFRICA'S WAR AGAINST CAPITALISM
by Walter Williams

SOUTH AFRICA'S WAR AGAINST CAPITALISM is a unique intellectual product. Walter Williams manages to combine careful scholarship with a clear polemical writing style to give us a "revisionist" view of the situation in South Africa that should challenge everyone's preconceptions, no matter what their race, nationality, or position on the political spectrum.

He weaves together history, law, and economic analysis to demonstrate conclusively that apartheid, far from being somehow wedded to capitalism, was in fact one of the first major and explicit twentieth century movements against the dominance of the free market. He shows that it was the product of white racists, socialists, and communist labor unions who adopted these hideous policies in order to prevent the black progress that was developing in the freest parts of the South African economy—areas where even businessmen who subscribed to the dominant ideology of white supremacy invariably sought profits at the expense of their convictions.

SOUTH AFRICA'S WAR AGAINST CAPITALISM is a passionate and powerful book, written by a man of great courage and integrity. It is a thunderbolt hurled at the left/liberal establishment that ought to shatter a host of intellectual prejudices and misconceptions once and for all. If the book is read and digested in South Africa itself, it may help save a nation from self-destruction. 159 pages.

ALL IT TAKES IS GUTS

by Walter Williams

This collection of Walter Williams's essays—drawn from his syndicated column—is a real treat. Williams is a witty and outstanding propagandist for his cause. Often he reminds me of an American Bastiat, using winsome rhetoric, the telling example, and colloquial language to bring his points home. Like Bastiat, he uses his own powers of reason and his ability to observe connections no one else notices to illuminate a topic so that you suddenly grasp the issues involved. There is a sparkling clarity to his writing style; you can disagree with him, but you can't evade his point.

Walter Williams has guts, a kind of integrity and courage that are very rare today. In many ways, he reminds me of Ayn Rand—he often ruthlessly reduces issues to their stark black-and-white roots. He seems to automatically think in terms of essentials. He is often linked to conservatives, but he never hesitates to demolish them when they wave the flag of social responsiveness, for example, or get in the way of individual freedom in some other area. He doesn't mince words, and he doesn't affect the artificial politeness of so many commentators that signals they don't really mean it. Walter Williams means what he says.

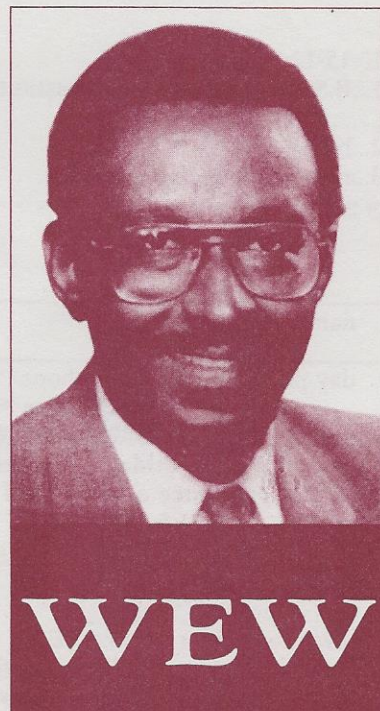

Reading through these columns is both entertaining and enlightening, but it's also more than that. It's the opportunity to watch the crusade of an extraordinary man for justice and individual freedom. It's a sight to behold. Walter Williams, we salute you!

Hearing in Romer lawsuit postponed, again

The American Constitutional Law Foundation announced recently that a yet-again rescheduled conference will be held in Federal district Court regarding the legal action filed by the Colorado Union of Taxpayers, and the Colorado Libertarian Party against Gov. Roy Romer individually. The conference will be Thursday, March 29 at 11 a.m. in Courtroom A of the Post Office Building at 19th and Stout in Denver. An important announcement is scheduled to follow the conference, outside the courtroom.

Based upon the court's prior informal ruling, it is expected that the court will officially rule against the governor's motions to dismiss, requiring the governor to stand trial.

In the lawsuit, the plaintiffs claim that Romer's "official" state actions intentionally misled the sovereign citizens of Colorado against the petition known as Amendment Six in 1988, and violated the plaintiffs' constitutional and civil rights. They are asking for $1 million in punitive damages against Romer, personally.

William Orr, executive director of the Foundation, stated: "The crucial issue in this lawsuit is not Roy Romer or even Amendment Six, but rather... 'Who's really in charge?' Can the 'sovereign' people still 'peaceably' change their fundamental form of government, without the government, itself, overwhelming and fighting them in the process? Can any petition 'to change government' prevail in circumstances where governmental power effectively opposes it?"

"Please understand that we firmly believe that Romer, as an individual, enjoys the full gambit of free speech!! As a community leader, Romer is not only entitled to speak out on these matters, but he is probably obligated to do so!!"

Orr explained: The plaintiffs' objection is that Romer went well beyond the appropriate boundaries of a community leader. He abused the public trust and authority of his "office", by intentionally using it to direct public personnel and resources to oppose a sovereign exercise of the people of Colorado.

The great power of the governor's office is delegated - its source being derived from and belonging to all the citizens... to both the proponents as well the opponents of a petition. Roy Romer is but a temporary "trustee" of the office, and a "public servant" to all the sovereign citizens of Colorado.

In matters of "self" government, where the people - the sovereign - are attempting "to change their fundamental form of government", their trustees may not use the sovereign's delegated power to defeat the peaceable exercise (of a petition for the redress of grievances), nor to favor one side of the debate over the other. Any lesser restraint would confuse the Sovereign with the servant."

"We are therefore delighted that this matter is advancing in the Federal Court, and look forward to the court confirming our sovereign right to "self government" - free from the interference of public servants!"

The American Constitutional Law Foundation is a volunteer, pro-family, membership organization, formed by citizens desiring to protect their constitutional rights. Contributions may be sent to the American Constitutional Law Foundation, 2075 S. University Blvd., #240, Denver, CO. 80210

Dedicated board, political candidates needed at CLP con!

It seems burn-out turmoil is affecting the CLP Board of Directors once more, with these changes taking place in March:

Acting Chairman Ron Bain announced that he will not be seeking election to the post of chairman at the April convention. Bain is forming his own publications company, he said, and will have no time to devote to formal party activities, although all of his publishing efforts will be libertarian in nature.

A production crisis with the March CLIPboard resulted in the termination of Noah Brodbeck as Communications Chairman, who was immediately replaced by Joe Dehn, a relatively new Colorado resident who also serves as Secretary of the national LP. Asked if he would seek election to the communications post in April, Dehn replied, "Probably."

Campaigns Chairman Rick Shaw submitted his resignation at the March board meeting rather than vote for the termination of Brodbeck. He accepted reappointment to the position, however, after the vote to terminate Brodbeck was taken without him. Shaw will likely run for U.S. Senate after April, so is unlikely to remain campaigns chair.

Three-year board veteran David Aitken is retiring from Libertarian service, and expects he will be replaced by Rob Herzfeld of Colorado Springs.
