New York, April 1 -- At its State Convention today, the Free Libertarian Party endorsed Thomas Michael Avery, 24, for City Controller.

While a minority party, the National Libertarian Party is simultaneously America's third major political party, having won one electoral vote for John Hospers in the November, 1972 U.S. Presidential election. In his acceptance, Mr. Avery stated his reason for running: "I want to make people aware of Libertarian alternatives to the present system."

Avery attends City University of New York at Lehman College. He is majoring in Philosophy.

Mr. Avery is single and lives in the City.
