LP Solidifies Standing As The 3rd Party

Marrou/Lord Totals Disappointing, Others Up Four Elected to NH House

U.S. Senate Totals Best for 3rd Party Since 1914

Future Bright Despite Pres. Totals; Ballot Status and Visibility Gains

By Randy Langhenry

The Libertarian Party's presidential ticket of Andre Marrou and Nancy Lord received approximately 300,000 votes nationwide, leaving many LP members disappointed.

"Although our presidential vote was not very high, the Libertarian Party remains America's third-largest party, and we are still winning state and local elections. Our membership is at a record high, and our base of contributors is up more than 10 percent from a year ago," said National LP Chair Mary Gingell.

As election day approached, many Libertarians across the country felt the LP ticket would top the 1 million vote mark, but it appears many voters opted to show their disapproval of the two-party system by supporting the independent candidacy of Ross Perot.

"The fact that we ended up with so few votes, I think, was due to the fact that we had a lot of competition," said Marrou, LP presidential candidate. "Not only Perot, but other third-party candidates like Hagelin, Fulani, Gritz, and Phillips. So we had a lot of competition out there." [See Marrou interview on page 9.]

"I was very disappointed by the national vote total," said Lord, LP vice-presidential candidate. "However, we really did some wonderful things at the state level." In many ways, the 1992 election was a success for the LP even before election day.

The LP solidified its position as the leading third party in the U.S. The LP presidential ticket easily defeated all other third parties, ruling out Perot. [See chart on page 9.]

"Overwhelming media coverage of Ross Perot reduced the votes for Andre Marrou and other alternative presidential candidates. But, Libertarian candidates for U.S. senator in 20 states received over 1 million votes (not counting California twice), more than double our 402,000 votes for U.S. Senate candidates in 1980, and better than any nationally organized 'third party' has done since 1914," Gingell noted.

"The Libertarian Party is the leading nationwide alternative to the failed twoparty system," Gingell said. Although the national media virtually

Although the national media virtually ignores third-party vote totals other than presidential returns, the fact that Libertarian candidates for U.S. Senate received over 1 million votes is "phenomenal," said Richard Winger, editor of Ballot Access News and nationally recognized expert on third parties.

The vote totals for LP U.S. Senate candidates broke records in nearly every state, according to Don Ernsberger, head of the LP congessional campaign committee.

4 Get into NH House

New Hampshire Libertarian State Reps. Calvin Warburton (L-Rockingham) and Finlay Rothhaus (L-Hillsborough) were re-elected to the state house. In addition, two new Libertarian state representatives, Don Gorman (L-Rockingham) and Andy Borsa (L-Hillsborough), were also elected.

Borsa was the top vote-getter in his three-seat district, and Rothhaus just missed by a few votes being the top vote-getter in his eight-seat district.

Warburton, Rothhaus, and Borsa had all received both the Libertarian and Republican nominations, while Gorman had received both the Libertarian and Democratic nominations. Since all four men are registered Libertarians, they will serve in the house as Libertarians.

Other candidates for state house received votes totaling 46, 43, and 41 percent in two-way races.

In the governor's race, Miriam Luce received about 4 percent of the vote, enough to retain LP ballot status. Luce received about 6,000 more votes than she did in her race for governor two years ago.

Kate Alexander, LP candidate for U.S. Senate, received 4 percent of the vote in a six-way race. She finished third.

The top LP candidate for state senate, Paul Seigler, received 13 percent of the vote in a three-way race. Two other state senate candidates finished with double-digit percentages in threeway races.

Clark State Senate Race In NV Going to Courts

Although a count of the ballots cast in LP candidate Tamara Clark's state senate race in Nevada showed Clark losing the race, 44 percent to 56 percent, the official outcome is far from clear.

"There is no doubt in my mind that I won this election. There is none," Clark said.

Polling showed Clark leading the race by 20 or more percentage points prior to election day. Exit polling conducted by the media on election day showed the same results. When the first returns showed up on television it was 61-39, Clark leading. But then, the computers used to count the votes went down for about two hours, and when they came back on, it was 38-62, Clark losing. The same thing happened to a large number of Republican candidates as well.

The Las Vegas Review-Journal, the largest newspaper in the state, has been looking into the allegations of voter fraud. In an editorial on Nov. 10, the Review-Journal noted there were continued on page 15

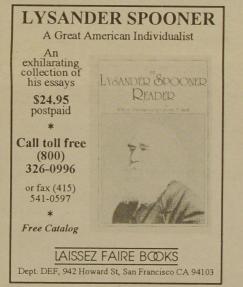

Getting Down to Work as 1993 Approaches

Note: I usually end up writing this column at about 3 a.m. the morning it is due. It was almost inevitable, therefore, that in last month's "thank you" column I would leave out at least one key person, and I did just that. Dan Karlan has been managing our prospecting efforts in the development area since he joined the National Committee in September, 1991. Thank you Dan, and I apologize for my omission last month. And again, thanks to all of you who helped us make the most of this election year.

I have to admit it. I was disappointed Nov. 4 when it became clear that the vote total for our national ticket would be only around 300,000 votes.

Even with Perot's re-entry into the race, and his increasing percentages in the last minute polls, even with 21 presidential candidates on the ballot in at least one state (in three states there were actually 14 candidates on the ballot to choose from!). even with the fact that we were locked out of the debates, I still had hoped for our total to exceed a million votes

We had two marvelous spokespersons; we had 50-state ballot status; we were able to run TV advertisements on a regular basis around the country; we received a certain amount of new recognition, attention and respect from political pundits, TV commentators, and journalists; and we ran about 750 candidates around the country; we even won some races! Our 800 # rang off the hook with people interested in our ideas wanting more information. But all these successes did not seem to translate into the national vote totals we had expected.

Throughout the pages of this paper, as well as in many other libertarian publications, you can read about our electoral successes, as well as various people's analyses of our disappointments. I will be reading them with interest as well

Many of our candidates and campaign teams around the country are enjoying a short but well-earned rest, before they gear up for the next campaign. The National Committee does not, however, have that luxury.

Right now, with the help of the national officers and area managers, I am working on a proposed budget for 1993 that will be reviewed, discussed, modified, and approved at our upcoming National Committee meeting which will be held in Las Vegas, NV, on Dec. 12 and 13.

Items being considered for emphasis in that budget include:

• a significant increase in candidate recruitment and in services provided by national to our candidates around the country; • maintaining our presence on talk shows by aggressively marketing Libertarian spokespersons to radio and TV talk show hosts;

• concentrated follow-up to our inquiries to turn them into members and contributors

• expanded campus and local organizing assistance: • increased prospecting to national lists of potential libertarian sympathizers • renewed efforts for 1994 and 1996 ballot access as soon as possible in a given state; • an aggressive legal campaign, starting now to address some of the inequities imposed on our campaign effectiveness as a result of government bias in favor of the two older parties;

• more news releases giving the libertarian perspective on issues of the day, to be sent to our national media fax list.

We will also be carefully considering the staffing level for the national office in relation to all the projects we include in the budget. At this time it appears that we will have a complete turnover in our national staff by early 1993, due to the career plans of various staff members.

Many LP members have spoken with me in recent weeks about the question: Where do we go from here? I appreciate your input.

One popular theme is the notion of changing our platform to make it more marketable. There are many variations on this theme, but that is something that can only be done at our national convention. If you have thoughts along those lines, start making plans now to become a delegate to and to attend our next convention, which will be held in Salt Lake City over Labor Day weekend in 1993, so that your thoughts can be heard by the other delegates

But more urgently, keep in mind that our 1993 budget is not just a dry document full of numbers that sits on a shelf. It is the document that more or less defines our national LP activities for the upcoming year. It can grow (or shrink) or change emphasis somewhat throughout the year, but the items we include in the budget this month will point the way we will go on many if not all of our major projects for 1993

If you have thoughts, concerns or suggestions about our plans for 1993, please provide those thoughts to your regional representative to the National Committee, so he or she can bring your ideas to our attention.

If you or anyone you know would like to be considered for a position in the national office, resumes should be sent to me at 2350 Princeton St., Palo Alto, CA 94306.

We all need to work together to build on the successes of 1992 as well as to overcome any disappointments. As your chair, I appreciate your ideas as well as your hard work for the cause of liberty, and look forward to working with you in 1993!

The Future Looks Bright for THE 3rd Party

1980. This year, both June Genis and Richard Boddie easily bested Bergland's old record. Boddie got over 231,000 votes, while Genis received over 222,000. In Georgia, LP U.S. Senate candidate

In Georgia, LP U.S. Senate candidate Jim Hudson received 3 percent of the vote, enough to prevent both incumbent Democrat Wyche Fowler and Republican Paul Coverdell from getting a majority of the vote. A run-off election will be held this month between the two leading candidates, and Hudson has endorsed Coverdell.

The Georgia Democratic Party has since attacked Hudson, the LP, and Coverdell. A state Democratic Party spokesperson said, "By actively seeking and happily accepting the support of the Libertarian Party, Paul Coverdell has endorsed a reckless agenda to compromise our nation's security."

Hudson responded to the attack. "These are characterizations, emotion-ladened words which are a smear campaign, irrational and inaccurate, a sign of desperation," he said. "I think it shows a U.S. senator who is deperate and, more importantly, a Democratic Party willing to resort to anything."

In Pennsylvania, the old record for LP U.S. Senate candidates was under 20,000 votes. This year, Dr. John Perry received nearly 220,000 votes. Perry gained some notoriety during the campaign for his strong anti-abortion stance. The state party went on record as opposing Perry's position, and favoring choice, but did not withdraw support for Perry. Four LP state legislators were elected in New Hampshire (see separate story), the best showing of any nationally-organized third party since the 1930s, according to Winger.

Other Libertarians were also elected in three other states. In California, David McCann was elected to the Orangevale Recreation and Parks Board, finishing first in an eight-way race. In Villa Park, LP member Robert Patchin was elected to the city council. In Texas, Wendall Weatherford was elected to the position of public weigher in Travis County. And in Alabama, five LP members were elected to the position of constable.

In Nevada, the results of LP national committee member Tamara Clark's state senate race are still in doubt. [See separate story.]

Other candidates across the county also received impressive vote totals. A listing of all available Libertarian election returns appears elsewhere in this issue.

"I think the overall message is that people are more likely to vote for someone without government experience at the state and local level," said Lord. "And while I am not advocating eliminating the presidential ticket, I think we need to put more resources into the state and local races."

On the ballot access front there were considerable gains. "The LP has already qualified for the ballot in 1994 in at least 18 states without the need to petition, four more than after the 1988 election," Gingell added. In Missouri, a state that has difficult ballot access requirements, the LP gained ballot status as a result of LP candidates' electoral success. In Pennsylvania, the LP gained "minor party status," allowing voters to now register as Libertarian, and also allowing the party to place candidates on the ballot in special elections, including one which will be held soon in Bucks County for a state senate seat. The LP will still have to petition, however, to place candidates on the ballot in regular elections in Pennsylvania.

In many ways, the 1992 election was a success for the LP even before election day. While media coverage was still less than most Libertarians had hoped for, and both Marrou and Lord were shut out of the national debates, there were huge gains in LP visibility.

"If we took all the Libertarian presidential campaigns and added them together, they would not compare to the coverage we received this time," said Me-Me King, Marrou/Lord campaign scheduler.

In addition to television coverage by C-SPAN, CNN, PBS, and ABC, as well as numerous local network affiliates, the Marrou/Lord campaign received coverage by major newspapers across the country, including The Washington Post, USA Today, and The New York Times. Marrou also received a two-page article in People magazine.

Editorial writers and syndicated columnists across the country backed the idea of including Marrou/Lord in the presidential debates, and many of them even suggested that the LP deserved attention and support from the voters.

Meanwhile, a number of Libertarians are suggesting a need to review the party's platform and oath, as well as party goals and stategies.

"I think we have to recognize that our message, and the way it is being presented, is being rejected by the great majority of Americans," Lord said. The LP needs to focus on realistic, practicable changes that can be made within the next three to five years, she noted.

"I'll take the hit myself," she said. She explained one of her favorite topics of discussion during the campaign was closing down the FDA. "I realize now I should not have been saying that," she said. Instead, she explained, she should have advocated a special category of drugs that could be sold with a clear label stating that the drug had not been approved by the FDA—"and let the consumer decide."

Growth, acceptance, and success are clearly presenting new challenges to the still-young Libertarian Party, but 1992 will almost certainly be looked back on as a pivotal year in the party's history. The future of the LP looks very promising, as long as members continue to work together for liberty as they did in 1992.

Already LP members are planning for up-coming special elections in a number of states, and the 1993 LP national convention in Salt Lake City is just nine months away.

Why isn't everybody a libertarian?

Why aren't people breaking down doors to join the Libertarian Party?

When you explain libertarian ideas, why aren't people dropping to their knees and protesting, "All my life, with open arms, I've waited for you and your message. How do I join? When's the next meeting? Is there a limit to how much money I can give?"

Is Something Wrong With Your Libertarian Ideas?

You be the judge.

Need more proof? Compare your libertarian ideas to the statist ideas you read in the newspapers and magazines. To those you see on television. Liberal and conservative, socialist and fascist, totalitarian and populist.

Not even close, is it? Liberty wins hands down.

"You Libertarians have a 24 carat gold idea—freedom and you can't even give it away. Ever ask yourself why?" Congressman Sam Steiger, 1976

In 1976, I was the Arizona Libertarian Party's candidate for the congressional seat held by Morris Udall.

I lectured people who weren't interested. I debated when I should have discussed. I talked when I should have listened. I talked down to everyone.

If there was an offensive, shocking way of presenting a libertarian position—I used it.

Every so often, people would try to agree, but I didn't notice. I couldn't take 'Yes' for an answer. My campaign taught me how to lose friends and alienate people. Finally, it sunk in. My problem wasn't other people. It was the man in the mirror. Me.

Do You Lose Friends And Alienate People?

Some libertarians have a morerational-than-thou attitude. Or smarter-than-thou. Or moreprincipled-than-thou. Or moreethical-than-thou.

Are your 'discussions' really lectures? Do you try to convince by beating the other person into submission? Do you behave like a tormentor, not a mentor?

And when you fail to persuade, do you blame the listener? The other person isn't rational enough, or intelligent enough, or good enough? It's always their fault? That is the road to permanent failure.

Failure is feedback. It's telling you to do something different.

The people you don't convince are showing you what does not work. Are you paying attention?

The marketplace of ideas works just like the free market. Consumer response is a teacher. Are you learning?

The Art Of Political Persuasion.

I felt stupid and embarrassed by my campaign in 1976. But I was determined to salvage something from my experience. I wanted to learn the art of political persuasion.

I began to read. It's now over 1,000 books on psychology, epistemology, semantics, salesmanship, cybernetics, self-help, hypnosis, communication and creativity.

I interviewed specialists in communications and persuasion. I asked questions and took notes.

I applied the scientific method to everything I learned. I tested every approach, technique and format. I observed and listened.

I began to write up my results. How To Get Converts Left & Right and The Late, Great Libertarian Macho Flash were published by Reason.

I followed these with more articles: The Militant Mentality, The Myth Of Mushrooms In The Night, Leveraging Liberty With Language and Intellectual Judo.

The libertarian audience wanted more, so I launched a seminar. The Art Of Political Persuasion Marathon Weekend Workshop has been offered all over the United States and Canada.

Then, I tested my teachings in the field. I was the organizer and fund-raiser for the 1988 Marrou VP Campaign, Project 51-'92 ballot effort and the 1992 Marrou For President Campaign. Between Fall 1987 and Fall 1991 I raised more than $500,000 for these projects. $519,344 to be exact (source: FEC). Now, after 12 years of study, testing and results, I have produced a three hour audio tape learning program: The Essence of Political Persuasion.

What You'll Learn In Only Three Hours.

- How to influence with integrity.
- > Open the door with rapport.
- From confrontation to conversation.
- The power of metaphors, parables and teaching tales.
- Political Cross-Dressing: how to get converts from the liberal left and the conservative right.
- The Late, Great Libertarian Macho Flash: abuses and uses of intellectual shock tactics.

- Leveraging Liberty With Language: the semantics of libertarian persuasion.
- Intellectual Judo: gently win people over without arguing.
- And many more easy, enjoyable and effective ways to make libertarian ideas irresistible.

Does It Really Work?

"The Essence of Political Persuasion is bold, imaginative and brilliant. It is the most innovative and effective program of its kind."

Andre Marrou, 1992 Libertarian Party presidential nominee.

"I've personally listened to Michael Emerling's political persuasion tapes several times. This program is great. It's a necessity, not a luxury, for all libertarians."

Jim Lewis, 1984 Libertarian Party VP nominee and 1992 Marrou For President Campaign Manager.

"Michael Emerling's political persuasion tapes are superb. I have listened to them many times. I continue to be impressed by the power and sophistication of his techniques."

Vince Miller, President of International Society For Individual Liberty (I.S.I.L.).

"I have a set of these political persuasion tapes. I had to learn it before I could teach it. Thank you very much, Michael Emerling."

Vote Cycle Shows the Best Is Yet to Come!

By David F. Nolan

For reasons which are not readily obvious, there appears to be a fairly strong 12year cycle in U.S. presidential elections, and a larger 72-year cycle which encompasses six of the 12-year periods.

While it is by no means an absolutely reliable phenomenon, public dissatisfaction with the status quo, as measured by the vote given to third-party or "protest" candidates, seems to peak with surprising regularity every third presidential con-test. And major "sea changes" in the American political system seem to occur on a 72year periodic basis.

I cannot give any convincing explana-tion for these cycles. The 12-year cycle corresponds closely with the orbital period of the planet Jupiter, the most massive body in our solar system (except the Sun, of course), but no cause-and-effect relationship suggests itself. And the 72-year cycle corresponds to four repetitions of the Jupiter-Saturn "lap"—the period it takes for Jupiter and Saturn to form a straight line with the Sun. Again, however, no causal mechanism is evident. Nonetheless, the patterns are there.

Let us look first at the 12-year cycle as it has manifested itself in the 20th century

By far the largest percentage of the vote received by any third-party or independent candidate for president was the 27 percent garnered by Theodore Roosevelt (Progressive) in 1912. Interestingly, Eugene Debs (Socialist) took an additional 6 percent of the popular vote that year; this was roughly double the Socialists' showing in any previous or subsequent election. Between them, Roosevelt and Debs captured a full third of the vote in 1912!

The next major upsurge in third-party voting occurred 12 years later, in 1924, when Robert LaFollette (Progressive) received over 16 percent of the vote.

In 1936, Norman Thomas (Socialist) and William Lemke (Union) polled 2.4 percent of the total popular vote, in an election when the winner (Franklin D. Roosevelt) received over 60 percent.

In 1948, Strom Thurmond (States' Rights Democrat) and Henry Wallace (Progressive) took just under 5 percent of the

Stockhausen Hearing Set

Robert Stockhausen, LP member arrested at a rally in St. Louis in October, as reported in last month's NEWS. had a hearing in mid-November, but after publication deadline for this issue Stockhausen has a prominent St. Louis attorney representing him free of charge, and the NEWS will update readers next month on the status of this case.

IS DR. RUWART THE NEXT AYN RAND?

"HEALING OUR WORLD is the first, comprehensive new libertarian outreach book published in the last 10 years. It goes far beyond previous books in providing a wealth of documentation on virtually every contemporary issue ... an important addition to every libertarian's library." -Jarret Wollstein, author of SOCIETY WITHOUT COERCION

"Never have libertarian principles been so plainly defined ... mandatory reading for anyone running for office."-Dr. Carleton H. Mabee, former member Kennebunkport, Maine Planning Board vote between them. Thurmond carried four Southern states

At this point, the 12-year pattern "skips a beat." The next major showing for a third-party candidate does not occur until 1968, when George Wallace (American Independent) received over 13 percent. Then, the 12-year pattern reasserts itself, with John Anderson (Independent) receiving nearly 7 percent in 1980, with Ed Clark (Libertarian) pulling another 1 percent.

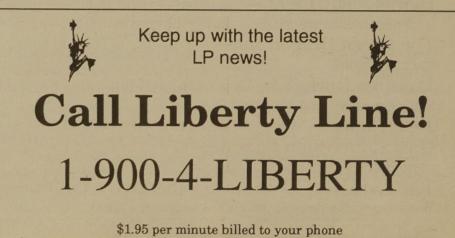

Now, in 1992, another upsurge of dissatisfaction is occurring. As of this writing (Oct. 5), it appears likely that Ross Perot (Independent) will poll 6-10 percent [actual return close to 20 percent], with Andre Marrou (Libertarian) receiving an additional 1-2 percent [actual return less than 1 percent].

Turning to the larger 72-year cycle, it is arguable that the three most epochal elections in U.S. history were those of 1788, 1860, and 1932—resulting, respectively, in the presidencies of George Washington, Abraham Lincoln, and Franklin Roosevelt.

If the 72-year cycle is "real," we are currently in the waning years of the Roosevelt Epoch, with a new era due to begin in 2004. And, of course, 2004 is also the next stop on the 12-year cycle. What does this portend? Perhaps nothing, but if past patterns hold true, we can expect 2004 to be a year as eventful as 1968, 1980, and 1992 rolled into one. Hold on, the Big One is coming! © 1992 David F. Nolan

Interview with Andre Marrou

Andre Marrou, 1992 LP presidential candidate, reflects on the just-completed campaign, offers advice to party members, and looks toward the future. Randy Langhenry, NEWS editor, inter-viewed Marrou on Nov. 9, 1992.

NEWS: How do you feel about the campaign?

Marrou: The campaign went quite well. It was pointed out that we evidently got more publicity than all the previous national campaigns together, and I think that's possible. Certainly in terms of newspaper coverage it is almost certainly true. The fact that we ended up with so few votes I think was due to the fact that we had a lot of competition. Not only Perot, but other third-party candidates like Hagelin, Fulani, Gritz, and Phillips. So we had a lot of competition out there.

I would like to thank everybody, starting with certain members of the national committee who went out of their way to help. People like Mary Gingell, for sure. Bill Redpath, the Ballot Access Committee chairman, who was invaluable. I can't say enough about the help Bill gave us in terms of getting on the ballot. Through my own project, Project 51-'92, we did deliver North Carolina and Nevada, but everything else was due to Bill, so he gets all the credit for that.

Then people like the members of my campaign operating committee, the "Steve Committee," consisting of Steve Dasbach, Steve Givot, and Steve Alexander, really helped out in terms of fund raising after we did the mid-course correction back in April. So they were, needless to say, invaluable, especially Steve Dasbach, who ended up as sort of the unofficial head of the committee. He really did a lot of work. I spoke with him almost daily during the campaign. Other people like Phil Meyer of California, who was head of the campaign issues committee, and I think we started out with nine people and ended up with eight people. That was a great help.

Then in various states, various people did outstanding jobs. In California, for example, I can't say enough to the good about John Vernon. In North Carolina, Scott McLaughlin. In Texas, Dianne Pilcher. And in Florida, there were a number of people, especially on the west coast where we had never really had much of an organization before.

And other people who are not in the line organization. People like Crystal Carson, who plays on "General Hospital," did agree to be head of our celebrities group. I did want to thank her. There are just so many people that need to be thanked, and I'd like to thank them all, officially.

We have had some problems. We've had problems with Libertarians in positions of authority telling us things which were not true, and we relied on them and then we paid the price because what they told us was not true. I guess the only thing I can say about that is that I hope it doesn't happen again. But maybe it's just one of those things you have to live with.

All in all we had a very good campaign. I think we set the stage for 1996.

Of our five numerical goals, it appears we have met or will meet four out of the five goals by the end of the year. In terms of getting on the ballots in all 50 states, we did that. In terms of starting up 100 campus organizations, the last I heard we were up to about 150. In terms of getting our mailing list up to 100,000, I think we are up around 85,000 or 90,000, last I heard, and it should reach 100,000 by the end of the year. And in terms of building the party membership, from 9,000 to 20,000, I guess we are up around 12,000 in terms of paid membership. And in terms of people who have signed the pledge, it's something like 25,000. The one goal we did not meet was in the number of votes. Our goal was 1 million votes, and we only got 281,000 or whatever it was.

But it does appear we did achieve some of our unwritten goals that I had always had. That is to help get some Libertarians elected. From what I have heard, we have elected two Libertarian legislators from scratch in New Hampshire, and we have re-elected two in New Hampshire. The Libertarian Party is maturing. We are not fully there yet. We have not fully mainstreamed the party. We are getting some of the mainstream people we need into the party, but we are not fully there yet. What I recommend to Libertarians is to continue the efforts at mainstreaming. to bring people into the party who are not in it. People like blue collar workers for example. People like minorities. We should try to bring these people in. And ultimately the answer to all political success gets down to money and television. I cannot possibly state too strongly the emphasis on money and television. What it gets down to is money and television, money and television, money and television.

If we could somehow arrange to have a Libertarian suddenly become a "multizillionaire" and also be a good politician, that would be the answer to the dream. Other than that we are just going to have to work our way up—building a major party little by little.

campaign rally in St. Louis.

NEWS: Are there any things members can work on now?

Marrou: There are several things I would recommend. Number one, get involved in local politics and work to get Libertarians elected. And I'm talking about seriously working to get Libertarians elected. I don't mean fiddling around the way we've been fiddling around for 20 years, running people who put a little bit of effort into it and buy a couple of newspaper ads, print a brochure, and end up with 1 percent of the vote. In a local election that is not what we want. We want to get Libertarians elected. So these people have to be dedicated to what they are doing, they have to put time, effort, and money into it. They have to be able to raise money. I recommend people get involved in serious races as supporters, or as managers, or even as candidates to get elected locally.

Another thing is to franchise the party. It's amazing to me that we have a big city, take a city of one million population, and there will be only one Libertarian Party there. That's crazy. There should be at least one in the south, north, east, and west. They could meet on different days, different weeks, but have a monthly meeting in each location. Franchise the party, make it easy for people to come to our meetings. If we make it easy for them to come, I guarantee they will come. Be ready to give people information about the party.

We do have some name recognition. Today, two people recognized me. One at a tire store where I was having my car worked on. The guy behind the counter recognized me. And then we were just walking around a mall getting some exercise, and a guy stopped me on an escalator and said, think I know you. You're the Libertarian candidate." This is the sort of thing that is going to help us in the future. By getting people on television.

I've been saying for years and I'll say it again, forget printed matter, forget the brochures, forget the bumperstickers, forget the yard signs. Put your money into television. Raise as much money as you can, and put your money into television.

NEWS: What are you personally planning on doing in the future? I read in People magazine that you were going to retire.

Marrou: I am retired from politics. This was my last campaign. I'm looking at other things. I do need to make money. I'm looking into doing other things, such as going back into real estate, which would probably not be a good idea. Going back into engineering, which is possible. Another one is to go back to Alaska and work as a lobbyist, that's a possibility. I'd have some difficulty rounding up clients that I could stomach, as a Libertarian. Another thing that has been suggested several times is for me to go into either radio or television talk show hosting. And that is indeed a possibility. If I had my druthers, I'd go into television commentary or television talk show hosting, something like that.

Do you have computer hardware, software, or other office equipment (file cabinets, etc.) you're not using? The national, state, and local branches of the LP often find themselves looking for equipment, but lack funds. Send any office equipment— in complete, working, clean condition—to national HQ, and be sure to include your estimate of what it is worth. MS-DOS, Amiga, IIgs, and Mac equipment preferred.

Local LP groups in need can contact national HQ for a current inventory list.

Winning others to liberty hasn't been easy. Until now.

Sometimes you wish you could wave a wand at people... push a button... and have them instantly see the light.

Here's the next best thing, "Self-Government: An Idea whose Time Has Come... (Again)" is turning non-libertarians into new libertarians.

Starring Marshall Fritz, this high-quality video explains the ideas of liberty clearly, succinctly, honestly. The viewer finds himself nodding his head, his excitement rising: This makes sense!

Short enough to be viewed in one sitting, the video answers these crucial questions:Are libertarian ideas based on decent principles, the ones your Mom and Dad taught you?

- Where do libertarians fit on the political map -- left-wing, right-wing, or do we need a better map?
- How do people benefit when libertarian ideas are adopted? Will you be better off? Will the poor?
- Where is the evidence that these ideas are practical? Is there proof these ideas work in the real world?

Lend this video to friends. Or invite folks over for an "evening of ideas" and show it. You can count on a spontaneous and animated discussion.

I'LL TRADE YOU

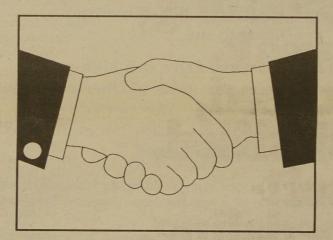

You probably know that your life began when two cells united. But do you know that people who get together to form a nation are continuing a long history of things that unite? Atoms unite and form a molecule; molecules unite and form a cell; cells unite and form a person; and people unite to form a nation. After billions of years of uniting on earth, we are the first units to develop a brain that can understand what is going on.

The biggest threat to our survival comes from people who want to rob us.

To try to eliminate this threat, our ancestors created the first nation by choosing a leader who could protect each person from the violent behavior of others. This system of electing a leader allows people to live in peace, and is called a government. Unfortunately, no nation has survived for long because most government leaders misuse their power.

The people who created the Constitution of the United States made a brilliant beginning toward solving this problem. They wrote a list of actions that our leaders are not allowed to take. For example, the first Americans decided that our government will not abridge the freedom of the press, which is why I can send you this letter. Our nation has grown very strong because we are the first people to restrict our politicians. I would like to persuade you that we need to add another restriction to sustain the health of our nation.

Paid Advertisement

The worst abuse of power by most politicians is taxation. They start by taking a small amount of money from a few citizens. Then, because every living thing tries to grow as strong as possible, these politicians take more and more money from everyone. To insure the survival of our nation, we should add the following to our list of restrictions:

Our government will not tax.

I would like to offer you a trade. If you vote for me to become the President, I will work to protect all > Americans from anyone who tries to rob us. I will introduce contract insurance, which is a way that we can operate our government without taxation. I will be glad to mail you the details. During the last century, Americans eliminated the disease of slavery from our beautiful nation. This century, we should eliminate taxes.

Clark Race in Doubt

many facts that put into question the validity of the outcome of not only Clark's race, but many others as well. For instance, 29 voters who requested absentee ballots in one precinct were registered at a vacant lot and 90 others were registered at store fronts. The Review-Journal asked, "Is someone in Clark County busily registering 'voters' and requesting absentee ballots where no voters exist?"

A writ of mandamus is being prepared by Clark and her lawyers, including attorney and LP vice-presidential candidate Nancy Lord, ordering the election department to release the preliminary abstracts of the election, the absentee voter list, and the absentee voter request list.

Clark said the election is going to be challenged in the legislature in January. The legislature, which is made up mostly of Republicans who Clark believes will give her a fair hearing, can refuse to certify the election and order a new one to be held, they can recount the votes by eliminating any questionable ones, or, of course, they can do nothing.

"Tamara, I believe, did win here in Nevada. Whether we will be able to prove it or not is up to the courts and the legislature," Lord said.

There will also be a federal case filed that will challenge the loss of ballot access for the state LP. Clark's race only needed about 1,000 additional votes to acquire ballot access, and it is her belief that those votes were really there, just not reported. The ballot access case will be filed on behalf of the LP, not Clark.

Clark said, "We need money to pay for the attorneys here, and for computer analysts to go through the numbers. If anyone can volunteer time to do some leg work for us, we can use that too."

Contributions can be sent to the Committee to Elect Tamara Clark, 6897 E. Mesquite, Las Vegas, NV 89110.

"Either we pay for it now, or we have to do petitioning in this state that is going to cost us between $35,000 and $40,000, because we have almost doubled the number of signatures needed for ballot ac-through again on election day, as the first official results in the presidential election showed Andre Marrou getting five of the 30 votes cast.

Although Marrou had received 11 votes from Notch residents during the primary, and defeated all other candidates including Bush and Clinton, LP officials were still very pleased five residents stuck by Marrou when their votes really counted. Fifteen voters cast their ballots for Bush, eight for Perot, five for Marrou, and two for Clinton. Luce received six votes for governor in the town. The Dixville Notch voting, including the Marrou totals, received a great deal of national media coverage.

erage. "The [state] party is quite upbeat," said Jim McClarin, state LP campaign coordinator. cess," Clark said.

"Libertarians better help out here, because if we can win an election and they can take it, it can happen anywhere," she added.

Clark also wanted to thank those who have already contributed time and money. "We didn't put their money to waste on this one," she said.

The election is over, but . . . the war of ideas rages on.

And Liberty provides the intellectual ammunition to help you in that struggle.

The votes are counted, victories celebrated, failures mourned. So now what? It is time to regroup, to rethink, to prepare for the future . . . and live a little! There is no better way to do this than by reading Liberty, the liveliest, most provocative, most fun journal of ideas in the libertarian — or any other — movement.

Liberty challenges, informs, provokes, and delights libertarians on six continents. In a world of sacred cows and ideologically protected citadels, Liberty appraises the many currents of freedom and reaction, no strongholds barred.

In the next issue, Liberty remains true to form:

• "Election Autopsy" — Liberty's intrepid editors tell you what happened, and why, in sharp analysis sure to ruffle some feathers.

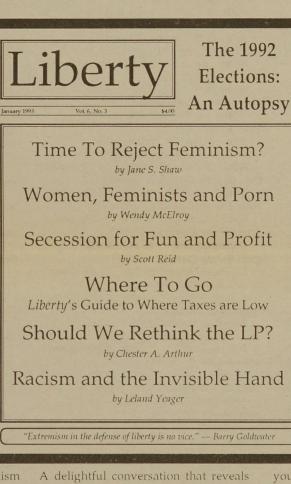

• "Women Against Porn" — Wendy McElroy defends sex, pornography, and genuine feminism from the radical feminists, who would enslave women in order to liberate them.

• "Roy Childs Speaks" — In an interview just before his tragic death, Roy Childs talks about his friends, the libertarian movement, Ayn Rand and more.

Free with your subscription! "Ayn Rand and Her Movement"

In an exclusive interview, Barbara Branden speaks frankly about life with Ayn Rand and Nathaniel Branden (Rand's lover and Barbara's husband). She reveals for the first time intimate details of life inside Rand's circle. The fascinating topics include the weird psychological manipulations within the group, the expulsion of members in kangaroo courts, and Rand's fight in a posh Manhattan restaurant with Alan Greenspan.

A delightful conversation that reveals his biting wit as you've never heard it before.

• "Where To Go" — Suppose your state has just increased taxes, again. Isn't there some place where taxes are low? There sure is! Liberty tells you where to go to cut your state and local taxes by as much as 75%. Plus a state-by-state analysis of taxes.

• "The Workers Take Over" — Jesse Walker investigates the worker cooperative movement, and considers just how right some of these leftists may be.

• "Secession for Fun and Profit" — Scott Reid offers some fugitive thoughts on the morality of secession, an issue that has never been as relevant as now.

• "Should Libertarians Be Feminists?" — Jane Shaw challenges the relevance of feminism, and considers just how far into the mainstream of modern thought libertarianism is.

• "The Other Austrian" — Mark Skousen takes a look at the oddest Austrian economist to hit the modern corporation.
