Caryn Ann,

We believe that government is fundamentally flawed, and that the institution of the presidency is no exception.

We have seen time and again the dangers of concentrating power in the hands of a few.

While we acknowledge the contributions of some Presidents, we must also remember the harm caused by many others.

Drew, will you help us continue spreading the message of decentralization? Show us your support for this critical message with a gift today >>>

From the Trail of Tears to the internment of Japanese Americans, to signing countless bills that slice away American freedoms, the list of atrocities committed in the name of the state is long and appalling.

This President's Day, let us renew our commitment to individual liberty and to the idea that true freedom can only be achieved when power is decentralized and individuals are free to pursue their own interests.
