Official Publication of the Libertarian Party of California-Vol. 1, No. 7, November 1994

Newcomer wages quiet campaign for Congress

Excerpted from story by Carol Baker, staff writer, The Daily Breeze (Redondo Beach), that appeared in Monday, Sept. 5, 1994 edition.

"Who is Guy Wilson? And what's he doing running for Congress?"

SOUTH BAY voters may never know the answers to those questions, mostly because Wilson is in no position to finance the kind of campaign needed to introduce a political unknown - himself - to the public at large.

So, for the record, Wilson is the Libertarian candidate running in the 37th Congressional District that takes in Carson, Gardena, Harbor City and San Pedro.

He also is the only challenger to U.S. Rep. Walter Tucker III, the freshman Congressman and Compton's perennial favorite son recently indicted for allegedly accepting $30,000 in bribes during his tenure as Compton's mayor. There is no Republican in the race. Thus, the lineup in the November election pits Tucker against Wilson, a little-known merchant seaman from San Pedro whose biggest attraction to voters may be that he doesn't face criminal charges.

Last month, Tucker, 37, pleaded innocent to 10 counts of extortion and income tax evasion, branding the charges a racist result of widespread law enforcement efforts to target prominent African-Americans.

In recent weeks, the Congressman has focused on trying to raise money for his legal defense in the federal case scheduled for trial in February, and sees no apparent need for campaigning.

That suits Wilson just fine. In general, he tries to ignore Tucker, the same as the congressman does him.

Taking to the streets

Like many political neophytes, Wilson, 34, generally prefers to talk about his philosophies, the issues and his optimism about a campaign he has taken to the streets, commuter trains and buses.

"Just because I'm new on the scene doesn't mean I don't have a chance" of winning, he said in a recent interview.

Pressed several times for details about how he thinks the charges against Tucker might affect the race, Wilson said curtly: "Are we only going to talk about him?"

But he said he was pleased with the timing of the indictment, which he learned about in a telephone conversation with his wife, Tina, after his ship pulled into port in Washington during his latest stint at sea.

"I just went, 'Yes!'" Wilson said, claspng his fist in a victory sign. Wilson blasted Tucker's contention that the federal case was racially motivated.

Boddie speaks to Perot supporters

RICHARD B. BODDIE, Libertarian candidate for U. S. Senate followed Ross Perot onto the podium at a Perot Rally in Orange County in September. Boddie reported that the Boddie for Senate booth set up by Orange County members was kept busy answering questions about the Libertarian Party and the Boddie Senate campaign.

Boddie went on to say, "When I came to the door (the entry for exhibitors and speakers only) and was asked who I was, another person there said, 'Oh, that's Dick Boddie. He can come in.' I was in my element, having a great time." After Perot finished his longer speech in the main arena, he spoke briefly at a podium in the exhibit area along with 2 other individuals. It was then that Boddie was given the podium. "Republican or Democrat - take your pick. It makes no difference." Boddie told a crowd of some 100 people gathered around the exhibit area podium. His less-than-three minute explanation was well received by the attentive crowd.

"I can tell you, when I get to talk to people, they like what I have to say." Boddie said. "We were able to hand out not only my position papers as the Senate candidate byt Libertarian Party literature and copies of California Liberty as well."

Final Campaign Blitz

LIBERTARIAN CANDIDATES and their committees and volunteers will be making their final efforts across the state the first week of November 1994. If you are not a part of that effort, it may not be too late to help out with time or money. Call your local candidate headquarters or your local LPC contact to get involved.

Petersen endorsed by UWSA chapter

JON PETERSEN, Libertarian candidate for California State Treasurer, has been endorsed by District 13A, United We Stand America, which encompasses the Fremont and Newark areas of Alameda County, half of Congressional District 13. Petersen had spoken to the group earlier this year. He did not know he had been endorsed by the group until a friend showed him the UWSA newsletter listing recommendations of candidates for state-wide offices.

POLLING: The Mirror As Others See Us

by Kim Goldsworthy

THE ORACLE at Delphi once said, "It is a gift to see ourselves as others see us!" George Gallup might have replied, "For those without that gift, take a poll!"

What is a poll? The dictionary says it is a "canvassing of a select or random group of people to collect information or uncover popular opinion." It can be done by phone, by mail, or in-person. It can be scientific, or quick-and-dirty.

Even if you read this column after election day, I still maintain that there is still lots of polling left to do. Surprised? Let me explain.

Polling is not just for candidates. Of course, I hope all candidates have asked many, many voters their opinions on many things, and then turned around and applied that knowledge to make themselves, and future candidates, look and sound better than ever.

Polling is not just for Big Tuesday in November. Of course, there is lots of polling to do to find out where our candidates stand in relation to the competition.

After election day, after the campaigns, the polling goes on.

Here's a poll I did that I recommend to you: Just a couple of years ago, I ran for State Assembly. A few weeks after election day, I received the statistical breakdown of my race, precinct by precinct. I was curious about why precincts varied in percentages from 1 percent to 8 percent in my vote totals. Instead of guessing why and setting aside the report, I decided to ask the voters themselves. I picked one precinct where I had my highest percentage. I walked that precinct on a Saturday and Sunday with a copy of the sign-in sheet of that precinct's polling place, so I could ask true voters (not the home-bodies who are registered but never vote) explicitly for whom they voted in my race, and why.

May I suggest that in late November, you walk a precinct and say this script: "Hello, is Jane Doe home? Hello, Jane. My name is Kim Goldsworthy. I ran for Assembly this year, so you may remember my name from your ballot. Do you remember? Well, I'm thinking of running for office again next year, so I'd like to ask you, as an average voter, what influenced your decision in the voting booth — Do you have five minutes to help me learn how I may increase my vote totals next time?"

What I learned from listening to each person who took time to help me, that's another column — things I have never read in any campaign book — Precious, and invaluable!

(Just to tease you, here are three things voters shared with me: How the winning candidate established name I.D. in this particular voter's mind; The importance the sex of the candidate can play; The short memory of voters; etc.)

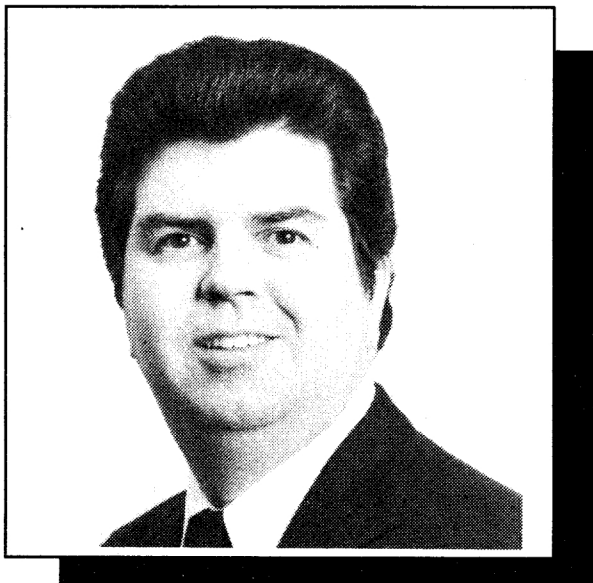

Try a variation or two. Poll a precinct to ask about whether the average voter knows the difference between the Libertarian Party and the other parties. Do a live 'Operation: Politically Homeless' quiz as part of a "city wide survey."

Still on my wish list, I have been waiting for the national Libertarian Party to do a nation-wide poll to ask Americans the questions: (1.) "What do you know about the Libertarian Party?" and (2.) "Overall, is it a positive, a negative, or a neutral feeling you have toward their candidates and their platform, as you understand them?"

Another example: Did you read the Libertarian Party 200-word statement in the Voter Pamphlet? A poll helped formulate the final version. The final published essay was a carefully designed creation of the most positive, powerful sentences/phrases from a half-dozen very-different drafts. Credit must be given to Lawrence Goldberg of Burbank, an experienced sales professional, whose words and phrases comprise more than 50 percent of the final 200-word essay. His phraseology consistently scored high, according to the impartial reviewers who read each draft, circling words and phrases that were positive, and striking words and phrases that were turn-offs.

In closing, for me to keep doing my job well, I need to poll you regularly. I depend on each county, each region, to tell me, and the Executive Committee, how goes the battle. Each quarter, I read the Northern and Southern

Vice-Chair's report. Twice a year I personally telephone every chair/contact in every county. I read every newsletter I get. Only San Diego, Los Angeles, San Francisco, and East Bay have newsletters arriving in my mailbox every month without fail. As for the rest of California, I depend on the LPC News every month just like you. Have you submitted an article this month about your region's successes? (Remember my column on newsletters? "If it isn't in the newsletter, I can't celebrate it, support it, or tell others about it.")

When I personally visit a county, so far, I hear mostly "Kim, keep up the good work!" I thank you for that. But I need to hear your complaints, too! Is the Northern/Southern Vice-Chair responsive to your region's needs? Is the newsletter arriving on time? What needs improvement? Is everything perfect? Cont'd on page 3

Liberty Scorecard

by Andy Rotter

THE BASEBALL strike ruined August for me; and with it entering week four as I write this, September and October do not look very promising, so I decided to keep score on our progress against the state. On balance, at least in the short term, the news on that front isn't good either.

First, the Good News:

- Aug. 1. The state Supremes unanimously held that a state law prohibiting age discrimination in employment exempts businesses with fewer than five workers.
- Aug. 5. The Defense Department has made it clear that it does not intend to implement Barbara Boxer's plan to use National Guard troops to hinder illegal immigration.
- Aug. 9. Thanks to Willie Brown's efforts, on a tie vote, the Assembly Ways and Means committee rejected a bill that would have authorized paddling as punishment for youthful vandals.
- Aug. 22. The Assembly defeated a proposed two-cents-a-pack cigarette tax hike to raise money for prostate cancer research.
- Aug. 23. The L.A. City Council (10-1) called on Mayor Riordan to declare an AIDS state of emergency, a move that would encourage the LAPD not to enforce laws against distribution of clean needles to drug users.

Bad News:

- Aug. 5. Reminding us once again that U.S. imperialism survived the end of the Cold War in good health, NATO jets attacked positions in Bosnia.
- Aug. 5. Back on our side of the world, the Senate (63-31) defeated a bill that would have barred Clinton from ordering an invasion of Haiti without congressional approval.
- Aug. 11. Providing more evidence that federal criminal statutes threaten protections against double jeopardy, a teenager acquitted of murder in New York state court was charged in federal court with violating the victim's civil rights.
- Aug. 12. The Fourth Circuit (1-2) stayed a lower court ruling which would have required The Citadel, a state-supported, all-male military academy in South Carolina, to admit Shannon Faulkner as its first female cadet.
- Aug. 18. The Clinton Administration forced the resignation of Jean Hanson, the Treasury Department's general counsel, whose testimony contradicted Roger Altman's accounts of contacts between the White House and Treasury officials concerning the Whitewater affair and who also indicated that Treasury Secretary Bentsen knew more about the case than he claimed.
- Aug. 19. In a ruling which restricts trial court judges' sentencing discretion, the Ninth Circuit (3-0) ordered longer sentences for Stacy Koon and Laurence Powell, two of the cops who beat Rodney King. More troubling, although it received virtually no media attention, the court also ruled that their second trial on federal charges did not subject them to double jeopardy.

- Aug. 20. U.S. imperialists again acted closer to home as Clinton announced a ban on cash remittances to Cuba and new restrictions on flights from the U.S. to Havana.
- Aug. 23. Facism-in-the-Schools Dept. — Wilson signed legislation allowing school districts to require that students wear uniforms.
- Aug. 23. Back East, school officials in Georgia suspended a high school teacher for disobeying a state law designed to circumvent the constitutional ban on state-sponsored prayer in public schools by mandating a daily minute of silence.
- Aug. 25. The Senate passed the Crime Bill. The fight in Congress focused on spending (although Republicans objected to only a portion of the $30 billion total) and the assault rifle ban. But it's pathetic that there was so little opposition to the death penalty for fifty more federal crimes, massive spending for prison construction ($9.85 billion) in a country which already imprisons a higher percentage of its population than any other in the world, and the increasing federalization of crime.
- Aug. 25. A Los Angeles County Superior Court Judge issued an injunction against 22 gang members which, among other things, sets a 10 p.m. curfew for members under 18 and a midnight curfew for adults. The injunction enables the authorities to charge gang members with violating the injunction even if they lack the proof needed for a criminal conviction. Violators face up to six months in jail and a $1,000 fine.
- Aug. 30. The California Supremes let stand a San Francisco Superior Court ruling that the state cannot cut welfare benefits under the Aid to Families with dependent Children program without federal approval.
- Aug. 31. Although the Ninth Circuit upheld a District Court order requiring the Navy to reinstate a gay sailor, it reversed the lower court's decision that the military's policies on gays are unconstitutional. The Appellate Court ruled that the military cannot discharge someone simply for being gay or lesbian, but can prohibit homosexual conduct.

Final Score: State 16, Freedom 7

Council Candidate endorsed.

STEVE GREEN, Libertarian candidate for the non-partisan office of City Council Member in Santee, San Diego County, received the following endorsement letter dated September 15, 1994.

"Dear Mr. Green, We sincerely appreciate you taking your time to meet with us concerning your position on property rights and other issues affecting the real estate and developing industries.

We congratulate you on fulfilling the civic responsibility of being active in local politics and wish you the best of luck in your campaign.

The East San Diego County Board of Realtors has voted to endorse you in your race for a local office. You may use this endorsement as you see fit in your campaign. Our endorsements will be forwarded to our local BOPAC committee which makes its own recommendations as to campaign funding available. We also will be providing information to our membership recommending their volunteer support and encouraging them to vote on your behalf.

We wish you the best of luck in the election and encourage continued communication.

Sincerely, Steve Whittington, President, East San Diego County Board of Realtors." Green reports that as of September 14, two months away from the election, he had attracted over two dozen volunteers and an active campaign staff. According to Green, "Their generous contribution of the only truly unrenowable resource — their limited time — has freed me up to carry out tasks I would not have been able to consider without their help. I am very grateful for their support. It also tells me that my message of fiscal responsibility is being well received. People are responding to my campaign literature, where I suggest that we should watch how people spend money that they themselves did not earn."

Savage Secures Second PAC Endorsement

"CALIFORNIANS Against New Taxes" has endorsed Libertarian candidate for the 20th Assembly District. Given Savage's clear anti-tax position the endorsement would be obvious if he were a Democrat or Republican. For Libertarians, however, support from PAC's is a major breakthrough. This follows and earlier endorsement by spacePAC, an organization that has supported increased private enterprise efforts in space development.

Libertarian Tops Republican Fundraising

IN A MAJOR financial milestone for the Savage for Assembly campaign, the team raised more money than the Republican candidate did during the entire 1992 campaign. As of September 23, 1994, the Savage Breakthrough Team had raised over $30,000 compared to the total of slightly over $17,000 raised by the Republican running for the seat in 1992.

"The days when Libertarians couldn't afford to run an effective race have passed", Savage said. "We're already ahead of the Republican in the last election in this district, and we're closing in financially on this year's candidate. We'll clearly have enough money to implement our strategy for getting our message out to the voters in the last few weeks of the election."

Savage acknowledges that they are unlikely to reach the fundraising level of his Democratic opponent, who has the backing of the Democratic party machine and liberal special interests. "We'll just have to spend smarter to win", says Savage.

Notes From the Chair

Continued from page 2—In turn, please poll your members. What do members want? — More events, or fewer events? Formal vs. casual? Pricey vs. cheap? Do they like outreach events or insider-type events? Poll, poll, poll, and customize your calendar of events to suit those needs which you can best fill.

Don't stop there! Poll your registered libertarians, your local reporters, your hottest precincts, your junior colleges. What's on their minds? What niche can you fill for them?

Finally, a quote from the phone machine of Dick Boddie of Huntington Beach (our candidate for U.S. Senator from California),

"People are deceived en masse, but enlightened one at a time!"

We've got to find these poor, deceived people ... and we'll find them by polling!

-Kim Goldsworthy

Newcomer's quiet campaign

Continued from page 1- "As a black man, I know what kind of bill we've been getting since we've been here," said Wilson, who grew up in South-Central Los Angeles. "But instead of crying about the problem, we should be doing something to alleviate it." Tucker only has himself to blame, Wilson said. "He got caught with his hand in the cookie jar, (His) history speaks for itself."

In 1986, Tucker was fired from the District Attorney's Office after he admitted falsifying evidence. Felony charges against him were reduced to a misdemeanor.

Returning Tucker to Congress could prove more trouble than it's worth, Wilson said. "If the voters elect this other gentleman and he gets convicted, they're creating another headache because they'll have to start all over again."

A step forward

"If they elect me, we can move forward and forget about him." Despite the criminal charges, Tucker would be hard for a Republican to beat, mostly because the district is 76 percent Democratic, experts say. You've got a (political) machine in there," said John Peschong, acting executive director of the California Republican Party. "But if (Tucker's) forced out of office, I think we will probably have the best chance ever of winning the seat."

For now, Wilson relishes his one-on-one race against Tucker.

"I look at it as an opportunity for people to really begin to look at another political party with fresh ideas and say, 'Maybe we don't have to vote for the same political party out of habit.'"

A fiercely independent man, Wilson finds it frustrating when voters turn down his campaign pitch just because he's not a Democrat. Playing the political game isn't easy for him. Sometimes, he said, it's a challenge holding back the tough sailor side of himself. "I have to be more polite now, which is hard because I'm used to saying what I feel."

At home on trail

But he's comfortable on the campaign trail, especially in urban neighborhoods like the one he grew up in. "I let people know there is someone out there who is one of them."

Wilson attended high school at Westside Academy, a now-defunct private school in South-Central Los Angeles. At 19, he followed in his father's footsteps and became a merchant seaman, delivering cargo to local ports. He moved to San Pedro, away from his neighborhood buddies, "who are still in the same place where I left them."

Wilson was a Democrat until he became a Libertarian in 1992, after watching the party's presidential convention on C-SPAN. "For the first time in my life, I saw that here's people speaking my language," said Wilson, who found the Libertarian focus on individual freedoms appealing.

"After the (convention) was over I went straight to the post office and registered Libertarian," he said.

He soon got involved in local party activities. With the congressional race, he spotted an opportunity to act on his new-found political persuasions. "This is a big step I'm taking, one of the biggest I've made."

From the LPC Treasurer

Regions receiving dues faster

Good news for local LPC Regions! LPC Treasurer Jon Petersen announced that dues payments are being sent a month earlier than before. On September 21, combined regional dues for July and August were mailed to make the switch from a seven week minimum lag to just three weeks.

Petersen said payments may be made even more quickly later this year, but for now they will go out on the 21st of the month following the month membership dues are received at the LPC office.

Petersen was pleased to be able to make the change: "This adjustment has fulfilled all the major goals of my two-year term as LPC Treasurer. The most important was repayment of the 1992 regional debt, and the speedup of payments provides regions icing on the cake."

"I will continue to make changes that benefit local LP regions. For example, I will propose at the next Executive Committee meeting that an inactive region be entitled, upon becoming an active region, to any dues collected for that region within the prior one-year period. This would assist regions that waver on the threshold of activity."

Need to renew? Check the date on your mailing label. Your membership expiration date is at the right on the upper line.

Renew your membership so we can continue to "Make a Difference." Or if you are one of our courtesy readers, consider joining us. Fill out the membership form on page 2 and send it in today along with your dues and any contribution you can afford.

Help keep the LPC strong and effective.

Songs of Liberty album planned

MANY long time Libertarian Party activists will be pleased to learn that the song, "Thomas Jefferson," by Dean Amad and Craig Franklin has been professionally recorded. Franklin was a special treat at many LP conventions and fundraising events singing and leading sing-a-longs of tunes saluting Jefferson, the Statue of Liberty, and the Declaration of Independence. Look for a fundraiser to get this and other specially written songs for Liberty out in the public eye or more accurately, ear.

Candidate thanks voting public

The following letter was written just after the special election called for September to replace Senator Frank Hill, who was convicted of bribery in June 1994. It appeared in the September 21, 1994 issue of the local weekly, the Claremont Courier.

DEAR EDITOR: I want to thank all the area residents who not only voted for me in the September 13 special election, but those who took the effort and concern to vote for anybody. It appears that only 15 percent of the people in the 29th Senate District bothered to vote at all.

My present and future supporters will have another chance to vote for me again in the November 8 general election, since no one received a 50 percent majority in Tuesday's open primary.

I am holding my head high knowing I have represented my hometown, La Mirada, and the Libertarian party with dignity, knowledge and humor in the primary campaign. At the 4 candidate forums I was invited to, I gained many compliments and respect from the audience and my opponents.

If the people have a chance to hear the Libertarian message—and I don't have the tens of thousands of dollars that the Republicans have to get out that message in broad numbers—then the people respond favorably. Libertarians stand on the side of lower taxes, less government, and more individual liberty (accompanied by more individual responsibility). There's nothing un-American and unappealing about those stances.

Again, thanks, voters. To the rest, remember to vote on November 8!

Matt Piazza, La Mirada

Two-Year Plan to End Welfare

AS USUAL, the bureaucrats come up with an expensive complicated "reform". I've got a better idea on stopping the theft of taxpayer dollars for welfare:

1. Effective immediately, no new welfare recipients;
2. In three months, with plenty of warning, all able-bodied adults without children are eliminated from the welfare rolls;
3. Mothers of children of junior high school age or older are eliminated from the rolls in six months; and
4. Mothers (or fathers) of children younger than junior high school age have one year to adjust their lives to work, and their benefits are not cut off while they work part time; and then they have another six months with some limited welfare and paid childcare before they, too, are eliminated. Viola! No new expenditure of funds, and welfare would be eliminated within two years.

At the same time, reduce regulations, zoning rules, permits, fees, etc., so that former welfare recipients—and everyone else—are able to run small businesses, child care, and other enterprises out of their own home, and bring back the free market for small, one-employee businesses.

Prop. 187: Good or bad?

Question: Why is the LPC not on the "endorsement list" of the "No on 187 (or "Taxpayers Against 187")?"

Answer: The LPC ExCom voted "not to endorse" Prop 187 in April 1994 after being asked to do so by the proponents of the measure who came to us even before the actual ballot wording was finalized. Since then no further "official" action has been taken except to notify the pro-187 team of the vote's outcome and advise our members and the general public of the LPC's opposition to this measure.

Prop 187 by Kim Goldsworthy

In consultation with Jon Petersen, who is both LPC Treasurer and campaign manager of the "Terry Savage for State Assembly", he pointed out that Mr. Savage supports Prop 187 (as do at least a couple of libertarians who wrote me on this very topic), but for a different reason, namely, as a long term strategy to help undermine the public mind—set that people should live off other people. (My words, not Mr. Savage's words).

Thus, although the ExCom opposed Prop 187 for the draconian enforcement provision, there are party members who say 187 is a half way measure toward denying taxpayer money to LEGAL immigrants, and by extension, the citizens themselves, ultimately, by the same argument. (And never mind the enforcement part, which is either never going to happen at all or happen with all the vigor and efficiency of the post office, or the federal agency of your choice).

And thus, it would be to our candidates' advantage to keep our name off the official endorsement list of the organized opposition. Prop 187 is not libertarian; the idea of it (people living off other people), however, sends a message that some libertarians may latch on to, and flaunt in terms of outreach.

Ed's note: At least two LPC Regions, San Francisco and Los Angeles have placed their names on the "No on 187" endorsement list. As for me, I would be "concerned" that the BATF would be chosen as the enforcement agency.

Member gains new hope through newsletter change

THIS LETTER appeared in one of our own regional newsletters. It is an excellent follow-up to the article, "What is a newsletter?," that appeared in the October LPC News. And it is a well-stated reminder to all of us to put our best foot (or words, as the case may be) forward to each other as well as to the non-libertarian reader.

Dear Editor: I was relieved to read this first issue of the new newsletter: I have been disgusted with the "internal power struggles and personal attacks"—as you so delicately phrased it—that have been printed in previous newsletters.

Because of the horrible, childish mud-slinging, and because of the lack of actual libertarian issues, I had asked to be removed from the mailing list of the former newsletter. I had refused to attend libertarian events for fear that they might also be forums for violence instead of mature discussion. I had even considered re-registering with another political party because I was so embarrassed by our local reputation—I certainly couldn't show the local newsletters to my friends as examples of my political beliefs!

So I truly hope that you mean what you say—that the newsletter will attempt to nurture ideas and strengthen the libertarian stand. I, for one, certainly would appreciate a feeling of camaraderie with other libertarians and a chance for us to work together, sharing ideas to make the Libertarian Party a serious contender with the Republicans and Democrats.

We Libertarians have some great values and solutions to contribute to this world. I hope to be more frequently reminded why I joined this Party; I want to know that other people really do share similar views and that our platform stands a chance of success.

And, who knows, I could end up being one of the 5 percent who participate after all... LPC member"

2 elections in 1 month for same seat?

AT PRESS TIME, it is not known if Jack Dean will be a winner in the Fullerton City Council special election on October 18, 1994. However, if he does win, he will be up for re-election on November 8, 1994. Crazy? Yes! But, not surprising. The special election is to replace the recalled city council members who were up for re-election in November. Contact Dean's headquarters at (714)738-1191 for an update.

Notes from Marin

by Bob Bickford

TWO NOTES from Marin County (where I am still de-facto Chair, until somebody jumps up and says "I'll do it!").

First, Greta Bickford continues to serve on the Tidal Protection Project Coordinating Committee for the town of Corte Maders (she's been re-appointed twice since the initial formation of the committee in 1990) and was recently selected to serve as Vice Chair of the committee. Local people continue to urge her to re-run for Town Council (she missed by 24 votes out of 868 in 1989).

Second, Bob Bickford continues to work with the group he co-founded in May 1993, Citizens Against Bureaucratic Limits on Entertainment (C.A.B.L.E.). The group is routinely called by local reporters and editors for comments and perspective on issues relating to cable television, and has had several meetings with one or more of the Marin County Supervisors; in particular, Supervisor Hal Brown has been very vocally supportive and has repeatedly said that he favors competition in cable television.

Ballot Arguments

SAN FRANCISCO activists were able to write the following ballot argument and rebuttal speaking against a local bond issue (Proposition C) appearing on the November 8, 1994 ballot in San Francisco:

Their argument against Proposition C reads as follows:

"San Francisco has one of the highest tax rates in the nation while the appraised value of the average home is DOWN nearly 20 percent. Do the supervisors care? No. They want to extort another $38 MILLION more so they can REDECORATE their temple!

To add insult to injury, the Board of Supervisors wants to "convert space currently being used for courtrooms to office space". OFFICE SPACE?! People are being denied the right to a "speedy trial" due to inadequate courtroom space and they want to use the space for even more bureaucrats to micro-manage our lives.

Stop the politicians' gluttony for dollars.

Vote No on Proposition C."

George L. O'Brien, SFLP Chair

Mark Valverde, Libertarian for Senate, 8th Dist.

Mark Read Pickens, Libertarian for Assembly, 13th Dist.

Anton Sherwood, Libertarian for Assembly, 12th Dist."

In their rebuttal to Proposition C, they said: "SPENDING MONEY IS SPENDING MONEY!

Bond issues are "extortion futures." Bond issues like Proposition C are not free money. Proposition C means we all get to pay higher taxes-not only to pay off the bonds, but also the tens of millions of dollars in interest payments to the rich individuals and big institutions that buy these bonds.

Now that property tax increases can be passed through to tenants, EVERYONE gets the PRIVILEGE of paying through the nose for the pathological spending of the Board of Supervisors. It is then no surprise that higher taxes are driving down the assessed value of homes to the point where home owners can save money by having their homes reassessed to reduce their property taxes. As it is, the average home in San Francisco is worth 20 percent LESS than in 1989. With recent home buyers paying from $3500 to $4000 PER YEAR in property taxes, is it any wonder that no one but the rich can afford to buy a home in San Francisco anymore?

It's time to put a halt to the extravagance at City Hall.

Vote NO on C."

George L. O'Brien, SFLP Chair

Mark Valverde, Libertarian for Senate, 8th Dist.

James R. Elwood, Treasurer, SFLP."

Orange County Mourns Gary Hull

by David Nolan

GARY HULL, 58, a long-time stalwart of the Orange County Libertarian Party, died of throat cancer on August 27, 1994.

Known for his genial, low-key personality and staunch devotion to liberty, Hull was a regular participant in OCLP activities, and was widely known as "someone you could always count on".

Hull was the founder and owner of Gary Hull Anesthesia, a successful medical supply company. He is survived by a sister, a brother, and his two sons. His friends in Orange County miss him, and extend their sympathies to his family.

(David F. Nolan, Orange County LP activist, is a founder of the LP and publisher of California Liberty.)

Condolences extended to Neal Donner

LPC officers and friends extend their deepest sympathy to Neal Donner on the recent deaths of his mother and brother. The two died in a boating accident on Chesapeake Bay.

Donner had seen his mother and brother just a few weeks previously at the funeral of his stepfather.

The Region 62 activist and Karl Bray Award winner can be reached at his home, 2739 Westgate Avenue, Venice, CA 90064.

Embrace Freedom! Wish you were there?

Liberty Convention Services

THE 1995 LIBERTARIAN PARTY of California Convention, Embrace Freedom! will be held in Oakland, California, over the long President's Day weekend, February 17-20. For many LPC members, the annual convention is a singular opportunity to meet other activists around the state, to renew old friendships and foster new ones, to hear presentations by nationally-recognized speakers (and yes, you might even call some of them celebrities), to roll up our sleeves and get down to the business of running a political party, and to have an enjoyable weekend socializing with other libertarians to discuss the issues facing all of us in our struggle to advance the cause of freedom in California. Embrace Freedom! promises to be one of the most innovative and exciting conventions the LPC has ever seen.

Special events planned for the convention include coffee-house crawl through deepest, darkest Bohemian Berkeley (birthplace of the Free Speech Movement in the 1960s and civic socialism in the 1980s) culminating at Top Dog, a genuine Libertarian business proud of its heritage which is prominently displayed; a Question and Answer session with the declared candidates for the 1996 LP presidential nomination; and a stellar roster of speakers including George O'Brien, Richard Winger, Mary Ruwart, Harry Browne, Bob Poole, Sally Foster, Chuck Olson, Larry Dodge, Richard Cowan and Irwin Schiff.

But, like Arnold Schwarzenegger's character in the 1991 blockbuster Total Recall, the vast majority of LPC members cannot afford either to go to Mars or to attend the Convention, even "virtually." Most LPC members are not die-hard activists willing to travel to a hotel in a strange city and spend the family's vacation nest-egg on a weekend of political "partying." Most LPC members don't know what goes on at the annual convention, not because they don't care, but because they simply do not have the time or money to attend. On the contrary, because they are Libertarians who have paid hard-earned money to the LPC, they probably care a great deal about the party's business.

Embrace Freedom! would like to embrace these LPC members as well as the 200 or so die-hard activists who always attend the annual convention, no matter whether it's held 500 miles away or within driving distance of their home. Although we don't have the technology to implant memories of the convention into the brains of members who can't attend, as Arnold had to do in Total Recall, we can do something else that won't cost anywhere near as much money, and is guaranteed to be safe and painless.

Embrace Freedom! has initiated a new package for the 1995 convention, the Supporting package. For a nominal fee of $17.76 or $20.00 (whichever makes you feel better), Supporters of Embrace Freedom! will receive all Progress Reports leading up to the convention, copies of the party's platform and bylaws adopted at the convention, and all convention program materials. The only things Supporters won't get will be a name badge on their blouse and a cold beer in their hands.

If you would like to know what the party does at its convention, but you can't go to Oakland to represent your region as a delegate or alternate, consider becoming a Supporter. It may not be quite as exciting as a trip to Mars (or even the artificial memory of such a trip), we can come to "virtual reality" in 1995. Clip out the registration form elsewhere in this issue and do your part to make Embrace Freedom! a successful convention with participation from all Libertarians in California, not just the ones who go to conventions.

Editor's Comments

Deadlines

Gail Lightfoot, Editor in Chief

THE TEAM effort that brings you LPC News and California Liberty requires a lot of hard work by many individuals. It is both challenging and rewarding.

One of our problems is communicating time constraints and deadlines to those submitting articles and material. I see a deadline as a final date for articles or material that you cannot submit before that date because the event has not yet taken place. And, even then, it helps a lot if I know about the event and your intention to submit a story.

I have to plan the general content of the paper well in advance. If you are planning to send a story, the sooner you let me know, the easier it is for me to include your story, as written, in the issue you wish. So, when you think of your story, tell me about it. And when it happens, write it up and send it to me. That way, we can work together to make LPC News a long term success.
